*O Fancy, weave a tapestry
With threads of gold and blue,
With smiles and things of yesterday
To lend a brighter hue.*

*O weave a pattern wistfully
Of elms and moonlit tow'rs,
Of ivied walls and reverie,
Of friends and happy hours.*

—H. Phelps.

*"The high embowered roof
With antique pillars
And storied windows."*

Where music sings each silver tone

An ivy shaded wall beneath the sunlight

*"Where smiling spring its earliest visit paid,
And parting summer lingering blooms delayed."*

*Below the arch and through the trees
There is a spot of frolic and of fun.*

*No cloud above, no earth below,
A universe of sky and snow!*

*The Staff wishes to express its sincerest appreciation of the generous co-operation and assistance furnished us by Miss Knopf
and the Art Department,
in the making of our Year Book.*

CAP AND GOWN

Burgess

A. Baker

Byers

Cap and Gown, the Senior Honorary Society of the Illinois Woman's College, was organized in May of nineteen hundred and twenty-four by the presidents of the four major organizations of the college, Carrie Dyarman, Mary Elizabeth Roark, Helen Bly, and Audrey King.

Its purpose primarily is that of recognizing and encouraging excellence in scholarship and general ability in extra-curricular activities. Truly, it is a society which strives to live up to the College Motto, "Knowledge, Faith, and Service."

Since the election of members is by the society itself, according to its own rules, it does not necessarily follow that the presidents of the four major organizations are members. Neither the college nor the faculty assume any responsibility for the election of members.

The hockey players showed a splendid spirit this year; the girls even got up for practice at six o'clock and played in the snow. Much good material was discovered, and we were anticipating a grand finale on Thanksgiving morning, as it has always been our custom to stage an Army and Navy game on that date. But, unfortunately, a heavy snow prevented the annual big game, and the hockey season ended.

But our disappointment in this was somewhat lessened by the remembrance of the hard-fought game with the Illinois College squad, played a little later, in which our players bore the high end of the score. In spite of our Thanksgiving game, we feel we have had a highly successful year.

HONORS OF THE YEAR

The Sophomore-Junior debate, won by the Sophomores, who were thus the recipients of the Wesley Mathers prize, was held on February 19. The question was "Resolved: that the present system of trial by jury should be abolished." The Juniors upheld the negative and the Sophomores the affirmative.

The debaters on the winning team were Helen Wait, Olive Mansfield, Imogene Ruff and Ann Gillespie as alternate. The Junior team consisted of Jane Tobie, Ina DeBord, and Celia Berry with Helen Phelps as alternate. Dr. McClelland acted as chairman and Miss Abbott as time-keeper. The decision was rendered by Judge Voght, who, at the close of the debate, gave the critical reasons for his decision.

DECLAMATORY CONTEST

The contest this year was won by Lucille Siple, and Vera Coultas was awarded second honors. It was held on the evening of March 7 in Music Hall.

I. W. C. I. C. GAME

The I. W. C. hockey team played the Illinois College team in a hard-fought game. As on the year before the blue and gold brought victory to Illiwoco with a 5-2 score.

MAY QUEEN

The May Queen chosen by I. W. C. this year from among the members of the Senior class is Ethyl Keller.

FUN!

There was a young lady named Jan
Who said to her soda clerk man,
 "When I leave you in May
 You'll not feel so gay,
But I'll see you next fall if I can!"

* * *

Marian Craine: Do you know how to make sawdust?
Nanot (unsuspectingly): No, tell me.
M. C.: Use your head.

Katherine Hyatt: Aw, come on! What's a coc between twins?
Sister: Five cents apiece.

Dr. Stearns (shutting door): Never allow a draft—except on a bank.

CONTRASTS

Freshman: Oh look! Five letters and two of them are from John!
Senior: Hurray! I got a letter this week.

They tell this on her—

Miss McGeehee had been trying to telephone for a long time. Each time she gave the number Central cheerfully called back, "The line is busy." This was the sixth attempt. "Number, please?" called Central. Miss McGeehee cried desperately, "Oh, it doesn't matter in the least. Give me any number just so it isn't busy."

* * *

A. L. Whitney: I have to play a violin solo before all the music faculty for my exam.

Maude Smith (alarmed): Oh, do you suppose I'll have to make a dress in front of someone?

Janie Uhl in class meeting: Of course we want pretty girls to serve. Now, when I served last year—.

* * *

"Hey," yelled the traffic cop to Ann Carolyn. "Don't you know that's a boulevard stop? Why don't you use your noodle?"

"What part of the car is that?" she inquired anxiously.

* * *

M. Byland (tearfully): This is only my sixth Special. Where did number seven go, I wonder?

* * *

Percy says God made girls beautiful so men would love them, and He made them dumb so they could love men.

* * *

Anna May: Did you know I'm quite an artist?

Harry Lee (gazing at her admiringly): I sure do, dear. You drew me.

I know a young lady named Orr
Who threw a young man from the door.
 He lit on his head
 And they found him 'most dead
Saying, "I won't come back any more."

He was a very good friend of the florist's, and he ordered two dozen roses for his best girl's birthday. As she was twenty-four he wrote on the card: "One for each precious year of your life." The florist, being a good friend, put in an extra half-dozen.

* * * YE VISION OF YE COLLEGE PERFECT

Classes are of a duration of one quarter of an hour. Students are required to arrive five minutes late and they are always dismissed ten minutes early.

Text books are a great waste of money. Consequently, we have no need of them. Collateral reading shall be along the lines of least resistance and much heat. Any novel that is banned is excellent.

There will be a prom every week, and men will be invited. It is a great breach of etiquette to leave before five A. M. Sundry things will be served as food.

There will be rules against getting in early. Any one who reaches the dorm before midnight and who confesses she has not been riding, shall have one month's strict campus, unless she promises that this offense shall never happen again.

Each student shall have a suite of three rooms furnished with hot water and chaise-longues, and twenty light sockets. Also, there shall be a grill, a toaster, and a waffle iron. (It is understood that the college furnishes the food.) Movable staircases will be built and the girls and their dates may ride on them when McMurray is occupied.

The year's session shall be six months long, and vacations shall be five in number, each a month in duration, as eminent physicians all agree that confinement is detrimental to the health of the individual.

I REMEMBER

A parade of slickers filing down State Street. Swishing, bright-colored. No one caring for the splashing or the puddles. A sudden yellow gleam in the west.

A serenade in the inner court. Lights out and windows crowded with girls. A crescent moon. Sounds of footsteps on the gravel below, muffled voices, then the silver call of a banjo. Listen! "I've grown so lonesome, thinking of you."

A prom. Soft-shaded lamps glowing over a dully polished floor. Black Tuxedos and a faint whiff of smoke. A sparkling bracelet and happy laughter. Tinkling crystal goblets. "Shall I get you some punch?" Wrist corsages. The last notes of the orchestra.

A dark, silent corridor. Steps suddenly creaking. Someone coming home from a feed, someone with a glass of jelly in one hand. The someone very tired but feeling very happy and terribly well fed.

Dads' Day. White lattice-work and gilt balloons. Candle-lit tables for four. A girl in a golden dress and one in scarlet. Bouquets of flowers and a dancing nymph. There was a tap-tap of heels—a red-clad bell-hop carrying shiny black leather hat-boxes. Back of the curtain were rows of make-up jars. Costumes hurriedly changed. Golf clubs and plus fours. Dads in the audience.

Crackling, hectic-red leaves blown scurrying down the road. Ripples on the pond, stirred up by gusts of a strange wind. A golden sun-rim fading out of sight. Then there was dusk and a bright fire snapping. Wood-smoke rising straight and blue. A group of girls around the fire, the light gleaming on their faces, and the savory smell of food cooked out-of-doors. A round gold moon caught in the black branches of tall silhouetted trees. I heard a low humming. Silence, and then a rustling breeze.

Just one spring night when there was no breeze, but a still coolness. The slight whispering of green leaves shadowed against the sky. Perfume, spring perfume, in the air. I heard cars whizzing by and laughter and happy voices coming from them. Down town the lights were bright. Boys and girls were talking together, sauntering slowly down the streets. Somewhere a breath of music.

Moonlight flooding white roofs. Icicles gleaming under the pale light and the snapping, cracking, of frost in the air. A dark clump of trees patterned on the horizon and a star hanging close above them. Houses with dim lights in the windows—flames from red candles. A low chanting, rising joyous and clear beneath the windows. Christmas carols. Warm wraps and smiling faces. The swift run back over crunching snow for cakes and chocolate steaming hot.
